Annales with Marx

By Shomit Sirohi

I. Marx – The Basic Economics

First there is commodities, then there is in the value-form, surplus-value, and material wealth with profit and exchange sides, even finally a socially-necessary labour time, which then is labour aggregately not individually, and this then is when abstract labour and concrete labour forms and constitutes abstract time and concrete time as a process in Postone – which then is also markets, and profits and dynamics which then is world-market.

II. There is also legal process within this called the legal form

Within this process mapped over the world is a legal process called a institutional form.

III. Annales

This story is described by Annales more in the sense of historical cycles of finance which seems to be a economic theory describing the process in its more historicised sense not in the formal sense.

IV. Aesop’s Fable as true – on Varoufakis

In fact therefore Aesop’s Fables is more complex than one can believe.